The Rule is intended to promote a more efficient process for deposition of entity representatives and reduce the likelihood of a mismatch between the information sought and the witness produced.

The essential elements of the new Rule are (emphasis added):

- (i) A party wishing to take a deposition of an entity will serve a notice or subpoena enumerating those matters to be the subject of the deposition “with reasonable particularity.”
- (ii) If the notice or subpoena does not name a particular officer, director, member or employee of the entity, the named entity must designate one or more officers, directors, members or employees or other individual(s) who consent to testify on its behalf. The named entity must identify the individual who will be testifying on the entity’s behalf, the description and title of that individual; and the matter(s) on which that individual will testify.
- (iii) If the notice or subpoena does name a particular officer, director, member or employee of the entity, the entity, pursuant to CPLR 3106(d), shall produce that individual, unless, no later than ten days before the deposition, the entity designates another individual who consents to testify on its behalf, in the place of the named or subpoenaed officer, director, member or employee of the entity; and shall provide the identification, description or title of the new individual, and the matter(s) on which the individual will testify.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the cumulative presumptive durational limit is in effect but may be enlarged by agreement of the parties or upon application for leave of Court, which shall be freely given.

B. PRIVILEGE LOGS

One of the most time-consuming and costly aspects of discovery in complex commercial litigation cases is the creation and maintenance of privilege logs. Privilege logs are governed by Commercial Division Rule 11(b) and CPLR 3122(b).

THE CATEGORICAL or DOCUMENT-BY-DOCUMENT APPROACH

- (a) Commercial Division Rule 11-b, mandates that the parties meet and confer at the outset of the case and from time to time thereafter to discuss:
- the scope of the privilege review;
 - the amount of information to be set out in the privilege log;
 - the use of categories to reduce document-by-document logging;
 - whether categories of information can be excluded from the logging requirements;
 - any other issues pertinent to privilege review. (Rule 11-b(a))
- (b) (1) Rule 11(b) clearly states that the preference in the Commercial Division is for the parties to use categorical designations where appropriate to reduce the time and costs associated with preparing privilege logs. . . . (An example of such a categorical designation is the designation that all communications between the client and the client’s attorney AFTER the commencement of the action would be designated as exempt pursuant to the attorney-client privilege.) . . . The parties are encouraged to utilize a reasoned method of organizing the documents.

There are specific rules that must be followed to ensure that the documents contained in a categorical designation were properly placed in that category.

VI. ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION

The Judges in the Commercial Division encourage all parties to work towards a proper and just resolution of the issues in the case. The judges of the Commercial Division believe that the parties are better served the earlier a proper and just resolution can be reached. Toward that end, the judges asks the litigants in this case, on a continuous basis going forward, to consider any and all mechanisms to resolve the issues before them.

IN THE PRELIMINARY CONFERENCE ORDER THE PARTIES STATED:

- (a) That they would be using the following alternative dispute mechanisms in this case: (i) a settlement conference; (ii) participation in the Commercial Division's Alternative Dispute Resolution Program (if applicable); and/or (iii) retention of a private mediator.
