

Jarienn James

Jarienn James is the Law and Justice Program Coordinator of the Impact Center for Public Interest Law at New York Law School. As the Program Coordinator she manages several public interest and diversity programs and supervises students for the Marriage License Project. Her first essay, "Who Does America Want?" was published in the Fall 2020 issue of the Georgetown Immigration Law Journal. Jarienn is an alumna of New York Law School's Two-Year J.D. Program. She was admitted to the New York Bar in 2017. Jarienn read for her LL.B at the University of Guyana and LL.M at Brooklyn Law School. Previously, Jarienn served as the Lewis Steele Racial Justice Fellow at NYLS where she also worked with the Fines and Fees Justice Center. Jarienn is a former intern of the Legal Aid Society's Juvenile Rights Practice in Brooklyn, Advocates for Children of New York, and a former fellow at the NYC Department of Education's Special Education Unit. Jarienn currently serves as the co-chair of the Education and the Law Committee of the New York City Bar.