

Community Dispute Resolution Centers Fourth Judicial District

Established in 1981, the Community Dispute Resolution Centers Program (CDRC) is an initiative of the New York State Unified Court System in collaboration with independent not-for-profit organizations. This statewide network of CDRCs provides alternative dispute resolution services to help individuals, families, and communities constructively respond to conflict. CDRCs are internationally recognized as a model of providing free and low cost access to high quality ADR services for residents in New York's 62 counties. Each year, CDRCs provide mediation, conciliation, restorative justice, facilitation, and arbitration services in more than 30,000 cases to help more than 70,000 people respond to a wide variety of family, civil, and criminal matters. CDRC assist courts by providing services in a wide range of court-referred cases including small-claims, housing, custody and visitation, divorce, and surrogates matters.

Mediation Matters

Sarah Rudgers-Tysz, Executive Director

518-446-0356 X 13

Sarahrt@mediationmatters.org

Fourth judicial District Counties: Saratoga, Schenectady, Warren, Washington

Catholic Charities of Albany Diocese

Catholic Charities Dispute Resolution Center

Lynn Glueckert, Executive Director

607-287-9985

Lglueckert@charitiesccdo.org

Fourth judicial District Counties: Fulton and Montgomery

Catholic Diocese of Ogdensburg

Justice and Mediation Center

Deacon Patrick Donahue, Executive Director

315-393-2255

pdonahue@rcdony.org

Fourth judicial District Counties: Franklin and St. Lawrence

Rural Law Center

North Country Conflict Resolution Services

Heidi Dennis, Executive Director

518-561-5460

heidi@rurallawcenter.org

Fourth judicial District Counties: Clinton, Essex, and Hamilton