Monroe County Hall of Justice to Host Job and College Fair

ROCHESTER, NEW YORK—Administrative Judge William K. Taylor today announced that the Monroe County Hall of Justice, with the support of the City of Rochester, the Action for a Better Community and local businesses and other entities, will host a Job and College Fair on Wednesday, October 4, 2023 from 9:00 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

The Fair will be open to all who have business in or visit the courthouse that day. The event aims to raise public awareness about local college programs, job readiness training and employment openings, with representatives from the area's colleges, businesses and other organizations readily available to provide Fair visitors with information and assistance in identifying suitable opportunities. In addition to the City of Rochester and the Action for A Better Community, participating entities and sponsors include Monroe Community College, AmeriCorps, the Rochester Police Department, BLE Training and Employment and the League of Women Voters, among others. Representatives of the participating organizations will be stationed that day at display tables on the first floor of the courthouse, located at 99 Exchange Blvd., Rochester, NY 14614, to offer referrals and other help to Fair visitors.

"The Monroe County Hall of Justice is the perfect venue for such a positive, community-building event—a space where employees of our local colleges, businesses and service agencies can come together with area residents seeking new opportunities, offering them potentially life-changing information and assistance. It's a win-win for the prospective student or employee, for the organization, and for the entire Rochester community," said Administrative Judge Taylor. "Although the Hall of Justice is a place of crisis for many, it can also be a place of hope for people willing to embrace opportunities to make their lives better. I remain grateful to Rochester City Court Judge Van White for bringing people together to turn his vision for a Job and College Fair in the Hall of Justice into a reality. I urge our judges and court staff, as well all who work with our justice partner agencies, to spread the good word about this important event in the weeks leading up to the Fair," said Administrative Judge Taylor.
