Official Court Transcriber

1 CHIEF JUDGE DIFIORE: The next case on the 2 calendar is appeal number 6, People of the State of 3 New York v. Rafael Then.

4 Good afternoon, counsel.

5 MS. PAZNER: Good afternoon.

6 May it please the court. Patricia Pazner with 7 Appellate Advocates for Appellant Rafael Then. I'd like 8 to reserve two minutes for rebuttal, Your Honor.

9 CHIEF JUDGE DIFIORE: You may.

10 MS. PAZNER: Okay. This court, in Roman, 11 held that a defendant is presumed innocent, is 12 entitled to appear in court with the dignity and the 13 self-respect of a free and innocent man, and to 14 require him to appear in convict's attire denies him 15 of that right.

16 In this case, appellant was similarly forced - -

18 JUDGE ABDUS-SALAAM: Does it matter, 19 counsel, whether the jury or - - - or anybody who 20 would have to make a decision about the defendant's 21 fate, knows whether he is in convict, or she is in 22 convict attire, as you pointed out - - - as you put 23 it?

24 MS. PAZNER: There is no dispute that this 25 was identifiable prison garb here, Your Honor. The

1 court, prior to voir dire, understood it to be 2 correctional wear.

3 JUDGE STEIN: Yeah, but I think the 4 question, without trying to put words in my 5 colleague's mouth, is whether it matters whether the 6 - - - that the factfinders or prospect - - -
7 potential factfinders actually knew he was wearing 8 those clothes.

9 MS. PAZNER: I believe that he - - - they - 10 - -

11 JUDGE STEIN: Whether they were visible.

12 MS. PAZNER: That yes, that they were 13 visible. And in fact - - -

14 JUDGE STEIN: No, the question is, does it 15 matter; does it make a difference?

16 MS. PAZNER: It matters that there is a 17 possibility that they could see the clothes.

18 JUDGE STEIN: Any possibility means per se 19 reversal. Even if there - - - even if there is 20 nothing in the record to show that they did or could 21 see it.

22 MS. PAZNER: The mere possibility, yes,
23 requires reversal here. I would point to Cruz, 24 there, in a shackling case, that show that unless the 25 record conclusively determined that they were not

1 visible, this court cannot hold that there was not 2 error here.

3 CHIEF JUDGE DIFIORE: Does it matter that 4 the appearance in prison attire was for a portion of 5 a trial day?

6 MS. PAZNER: No, Your Honor. First
7 impressions matter here. They met the defendant, 8 defendant was presented to them dirty, disheveled,
9 and in prison attire.

10 From then on, this is the lens that defendant
11 was going to be viewed through, that he wore civilian 12 clothes following those days does nothing to cure the 13 error, because - - -

14 JUDGE ABDUS-SALAAM: Counsel, what, in the 15 record, suggests that these jurors, on that half day, 16 could see that your client was wearing prison pants?

17 MS. PAZNER: It's actually the court's own
18 record that shows that - - - that visibility was a 19 possibility. Because it says, although unlikely, 20 unless a juror strained, means that visibility was a 21 possibility, because if one juror was intent on 22 looking at defendant, then the pants were visible.

23 And I would like to point out that the 24 prosecutor, during voir dire, made it a point of pointing 25 out the defendant's disability. Because defendant was in 1 a wheelchair, in fact, made his legs much more noticeable.

2 JUDGE GARCIA: Counsel, you are citing the 3 shackling cases for saying the mere possibility. But 4 do you think the mere possibility language in the 5 shackling case is somehow also a product of the fact
6 that we do apply harmless error in the shackling
7 cases? I mean, what you want is mere possibility, 8 absolute error.

9 MS. PAZNER: Yes. I believe that the 10 visibility part of that goes to whether an error has 11 been established. So in - - -

12 JUDGE GARCIA: But you don't think that we 13 might say, okay, mere possibility in a shackling case 14 may get you an error, but that error is going to be 15 analyzed under harmless error analysis. You want 16 both of those parts.

17 MS. PAZNER: I - - -

18 JUDGE GARCIA: You want the mere 19 possibility being automatic reversal.

20 MS. PAZNER: I want what this court held in 21 Roman, which was that once the error is established, 22 that a defendant is forced to appear in identifiable 23 prison wear, that there is a reversal without 24 harmless error analysis here.

25 JUDGE STEIN: Didn't - - - didn't the court

1 also say in Roman that there might be situations in 2 which - - - that would present problems, practical 3 problems of implementation of a request that a 4 defendant not wear prison garb? Doesn't that kind 5 of, at least, suggest that - - - that we weren't 6 talking about a rule of per se reversibility?

7 MS. PAZNER: No. I think - - - I think 8 that they were leaving open the possibility that 9 there may be some - - - a defendant that perhaps 10 would want to wear prison attire, you know, they - - 11 - they deal with that in Estelle, where if you're not 12 compelled, if - - - then - - - then it's not a per se 13 reversible error, but once you are compelled, it is 14 so.

15 I think that's the opening - - -

16 JUDGE STEIN: Although the language refers 17 to implementation of a defendant's request that he 18 not wear prison garb. So I'm not sure that - - - 19 that that makes sense.

20 MS. PAZNER: I think - - - I think that 21 that is - - - that is foreclosed by Estelle, by the 22 moment that Estelle wrote that there is no
23 justifiable state interest in wearing prison garb, I 24 don't think that now we can go back and find that 25 there might be.

1 Appellant - - - appellant timely protested. He 2 said that he was wearing orange pants, he didn't look 3 appropriate, he recognized that he was meeting the jury 4 for the first time, and this was his life on the line, and 5 requested - - - while he requested a two-day adjournment, 6 defense counsel did modify that and asked for just a mere 7 afternoon, and in fact, was able - - - defendant was able 8 to obtain civilian clothing the next day. And so this 9 error could have been completely avoided by a mere 10 afternoon adjournment.

11 Here, harmless error doesn't apply under Roman, 12 and I would also point out that this court's reading in 13 Nelson also suggests that the framework requires - - -

14 JUDGE ABDUS-SALAAM: So you don't think 15 that - - -

16 MS. PAZNER: - - - per se reversible error.

17 JUDGE ABDUS-SALAAM: - - - Roman is 18 distinguishable from this case at all? In Roman, the 19 - - - wasn't the defendant required to wear prison 20 garb during the entire trial?

21 MS. PAZNER: Yes. That's correct. They - 22 - - they were. But I would just say that the - - - 23 the - - - once the error is established, it's 24 established. The peop - - - the jurors know. The 25 jurors know who he is, who he's being presented as, a

1 criminal, an obviously guilty person. To be reminded 2 of that is what Roman is, but that doesn't - - -

3 JUDGE GARCIA: But Roman also is - - -

4 MS. PAZNER: - - - erase what they know.

5 JUDGE GARCIA: But Roman does not get to 6 the harmless error prong at all. In fact, it's not 7 mentioned. Roman is a one-paragraph procurement
8 opinion. It does - - - so you're saying you want 9 what's in Roman, but you're saying you want a no-10 harmless error rule; that's not Roman. I mean, we 11 didn't address it.

12 MS. PAZNER: Right.

13 JUDGE GARCIA: So in Roman, as the judge
14 was saying, Judge Abdus-Salaam, it's a continuing 15 presence in front of the jury, we didn't get to 16 harmless error, but now you want a mere possibility, 17 no harmless error.

18 MS. PAZNER: I - - - I want - - -

19 JUDGE GARCIA: And you said you want what's 20 in Roman, but I don't see that as Roman.

21 MS. PAZNER: I want what - - - I want this 22 court to hold that there is an error. Error was 23 established, and just as in Roman, reversal is 24 required.

25 CHIEF JUDGE DIFIORE: Counsel, do you - - -

1 JUDGE GARCIA: Without a harmless error - -
2 - I'm sorry.

3 CHIEF JUDGE DIFIORE: You care to get to 4 the issue regarding the ex-girlfriend's testimony?

5 MS. PAZNER: Sure, Your Honor. The 6 complaint here is that appellant was deprived of his 7 due-process right to a fair trial when the court 8 allowed testimony from appellant's girlfriend, that 9 he always carried a gun during the month - - -

10 JUDGE STEIN: Was there an objection to 11 that? I - - - I haven't found anything in the record 12 that indicates that it was preserved, but - - -

13 MS. PAZNER: I believe that the defense 14 counsel asked that mention of the gun that he was 15 carrying - - -

16 JUDGE STEIN: Well, there - - - there 17 certainly was an objection to admiss - - - to 18 admitting the gun itself, and - - - and in the end, 19 the court did not allow any reference to finding the 20 gun when he was arrested.

21 MS. PAZNER: Right.

22 JUDGE STEIN: But the remainder of this 23 testimony, I didn't see any objection.

24 MS. PAZNER: I - - - I believe that you can 25 imply from defense counsel's objections that - - -

1 that - - - to the gun being put in, and mention of 2 the gun, is the girlfriend's testimony about the gun 3 throughout the month.

4 JUDGE STEIN: Because I - - - I thought it 5 was aimed at the fact that he was acquitted of the 6 charge of having the gun at that particular time, and 7 that was why he was focused on the gun at the time of 8 his arrest.

9 MS. PAZNER: Right. I - - -

10 JUDGE STEIN: But - - - but that wouldn't 11 preclude evidence of his having a gun on some other 12 occasion, necessarily, and I just did - - - okay.

13 MS. PAZNER: Okay. And - - -

14 JUDGE STEIN: I see.

15 MS. PAZNER: Do you want me to address the 16 actual issue at hand? Okay.

17 It was admitted, according to the court, under 18 the identity, narrative, and access. None of these were 19 appropriate here.

20 This did not go to ID. You know, for ID, you 21 need to find something unique about the prior crime and 22 the current crime. Here, there was nothing unique about 23 this gun. It was a black gun that was six to seven inches 24 long, the complainant was robbed by a black nine-25 millimeter gun, there's nothing - - - there's no unique

1 characteristics about that.

2 Nor did it complete the narrative. It had 3 nothing to do with the date of the crime; it had to do - -
4 - and specifically, I believe the girlfriend could not - -
5 - did not see the robber - - - I'm sorry, the girlfriend 6 did not see defendant on the day of the incident.

7 Access was just not necessary here, because the 8 charges that the defendant faced were that he displayed a 9 gun. The robber displayed a gun, rather than - - - what 10 appeared to be a gun, rather than an actual gun here.

11 This was not harmless here; this was a very 12 quick eyewitness, one-eyewitness robbery. It happened
13 very fast, there was a weapon involved, so clearly, weapon
14 focus was at play here. And there was no other 15 identification, including a surveillance video; it was too 16 grainy to make an identification here.

17 CHIEF JUDGE DIFIORE: Thank you, counsel.

18 MS. PAZNER: Thank you.

19 CHIEF JUDGE DIFIORE: Mr. Ferdenzi.

20 MR. FERDENZI: Good afternoon, Your Honors.

21 Joseph Ferdenzi for the People of the State of New 22 York.

23 The defendant here got a fair trial. I grant 24 you, maybe it wasn't perfect, but it - - - but it was 25 fair.

1 JUDGE FAHEY: Let me ask you this - - -

2 MR. FERDENZI: Sure.

3 JUDGE FAHEY: - - - Mr. Ferdenzi. Do you -
4 - - would you characterize the Appellate Division
5 ruling as - - - as a harmless error ruling?

6 MR. FERDENZI: Essentially, yes.

7 JUDGE FAHEY: Okay. So that means, in 8 essence, that they credited Supreme Court's statement 9 that you had to strain to see the orange pants, which 10 means that if you strained, you could see the orange 11 pants. So therefore, they found that - - - so they 12 were, therefore, identifiable, but - - - but it was a 13 minor error, and it was a harmless error. And it 14 didn't - - - it didn't have a significant effect on 15 the outcome of the case.

16 MR. FERDENZI: I - - - I - - -

17 JUDGE FAHEY: Is - - - is that how you
18 characterize it?

19 MR. FERDENZI: I don't think I - - - I
20 would, Your Honor.

21 JUDGE FAHEY: Let me just explain the 22 reason I asked.

23 MR. FERDENZI: Yes.

24 JUDGE FAHEY: I'm curious, what are we to 25 do? Are we to say, number one, if there is an

1 affirmed finding of fact that this was not
2 identifiable - - - identifiable piece of prison
3 clothing, then I don't think we really have to go 4 much further with this.

5 MR. FERDENZI: Um-hum.

6 JUDGE FAHEY: But if that's in question, 7 and that if you can fairly or reasonably argue that 8 it was identifiable, then the question, for this 9 court, becomes whether or not - - - then it's error, 10 so is it harmless error or not. And we're really 11 focused in on whether or not harmless error can apply 12 in this setting.

13 MR. FERDENZI: Yeah - - -

14 JUDGE FAHEY: That's why I'm asking you
15 that.

16 MR. FERDENZI: Yes, I understand, Your 17 Honor. Of course, it's understandable that many 18 times an Appellate Court, especially a very busy 19 Appellate Division like the Second Department, will 20 base its ruling on what it thinks is the strongest -
21 - -

22 JUDGE FAHEY: Well, you know - - -

23 MR. FERDENZI: Yeah.

24 JUDGE FAHEY: - - - I think, in fairness to 25 them, I think they tried to cover both sides of this

1 question. You know, it's a prudent thing to do when 2 you're an Appellate Court. But I'm curious to know 3 how you see it.

4 MR. FERDENZI: Well, I don't see it as - - 5 - first, I don't think that that statement, that if 6 somebody strained they could see it, means that 7 anyone actually saw the pants.

8 I know that when the assistant DA asked the 9 panel if they noticed anything unusual about the 10 defendant, the only response was, he's in a 11 wheelchair. So - - -

12 JUDGE FAHEY: Yeah, I think you're totally 13 right. But all they had to do, either court, was 14 just say, they couldn't see it, it's not 15 identifiable; that's our finding of fact.

16 Nobody said that.

17 MR. FERDENZI: I understand, Your Honor.

18 JUDGE FAHEY: Yeah.

19 MR. FERDENZI: I - - - I - - - I've been 20 practice - - -

21 JUDGE FAHEY: So it's kind of simple.
22 That's kind of simple.

23 MR. FERDENZI: Yeah, I underst - - - no, I
24 totally understand, Your Honor. You know, I've been 25 practicing appellate law for a long time - - -

1 JUDGE FAHEY: Yeah.

2 MR. FERDENZI: - - - and when I get the 3 perfect record on appeal, I'll have retired by then.

4 JUDGE FAHEY: Good luck.

5 MR. FERDENZI: Thank you. So I just think 6 that on this record, we - - - we should come to the 7 conclusion, and - - - and this is the conclusion that 8 I think - - - and the Appellate Division came to, 9 which is that regardless of whether these pants were 10 visible, which we say they're not, regardless of 11 whether they were identifiable, which we say they're 12 not, the fact is, this defendant was convicted 13 because of the mountain of evidence arrayed against 14 him.

15 And there's no way this half day of wearing 16 orange pants could have led to this verdict. I don't 17 think a jury even seeing the orange pants, when faced 18 with this - - - I don't know, I don't know what to 19 call it, but an insurmountable - - -

20 JUDGE FAHEY: You see, I - - - I - - - I
21 happen to think you're right, if harmless error 22 analysis can be applied.

23 MR. FERDENZI: Yes.

24 JUDGE FAHEY: So that's really the 25 question.

1 MR. FERDENZI: And - - -

2 JUDGE FAHEY: Can it be applied to - - - to 3 identifiable prison clothing.

4 MR. FERDENZI: I - - - I absolutely think 5 it - - - it's in line with this court's 6 jurisprudence.

7 JUDGE FAHEY: Um-hum.

8 MR. FERDENZI: I mean, when I read the - - 9 - this court's cases on visible handcuffs, visible
10 leg shackles - - -

11 JUDGE FAHEY: You know, the distinction
12 though there, is that I think harmless error analysis 13 is correctly applied by this court to those 14 situations, because there's an element of a 15 compelling state interest. There's a question of 16 safety there. And we don't have that here.

17 MR. FERDENZI: But - - -

18 JUDGE FAHEY: This is the kind of error 19 that, really, there's no compelling state interest in 20 what attire somebody wears.

21 MR. FERDENZI: I quite agree with you, Your 22 Honor, but that goes to whether there - - - there's 23 error or not.

24 JUDGE FAHEY: Um-hum.

25 MR. FERDENZI: That analysis goes to

1 whether there's error. That analysis does not apply 2 to whether it's harmless.

3 I understand that there's no compelling reason 4 to wear prison clothes, and that in the other cases, in 5 order to decide whether there was error by the trial
6 court, one engages in that analysis. But I don't think it 7 has any bearing on harmlessness. I think that it would 8 be, as I said in my brief, and I apologize for repeating 9 myself, it's counterintuitive to say, if a jury
10 erroneously, erroneously, sees leg shackles or visible 11 handcuffs, the error can nevertheless be harmless.

12 But to say that if there is an error in wearing 13 prison clothing, that cannot be harmless. I - - - I don't 14 think those things drive together. I don't - - - I think 15 it would lead - - -

16 JUDGE RIVERA: I - - - I'm sorry - - -

17 MR. FERDENZI: - - - to confu - - -

18 JUDGE RIVERA: - - - I'm not really 19 understanding.

20 MR. FERDENZI: Okay.

21 JUDGE RIVERA: Perhaps I'm just not hearing 22 you clearly. Understanding the argument about the 23 analysis on - - - on - - - in those prior cases goes 24 to the compelling interest in error.

25 MR. FERDENZI: Um-hum.

1 JUDGE RIVERA: Right. Isn't the error
2 whether or not you shackled them or didn't shackle 3 them?

4 MR. FERDENZI: Yes.

5 JUDGE RIVERA: Or you handcuffed them or 6 didn't handcuff them?

7 MR. FERDENZI: Correct.

8 JUDGE RIVERA: And you could or couldn't?

9 MR. FERDENZI: Um-hum.

10 JUDGE RIVERA: So okay. Walk me through, 11 again, your argument of how in - - - in those 12 examples, those prior cases, what's at play is the 13 state's interest, which is not the case in the garb.
14 It's either you're wearing the garb or you're not;
15 isn't that the error?

16 MR. FERDENZI: Yes. But the - - - the 17 point I'm making is that if you can have error in 18 shackling somebody - - -

19 JUDGE RIVERA: Um-hum.

20 MR. FERDENZI: - - - in front of a jury - -

22 JUDGE RIVERA: Yes.

23 MR. FERDENZI: - - - and yet hold the error
24 to be harmless, then you should hold that visible 25 prison clothing can be harmless also.

1 JUDGE FAHEY: Well, that's because the 2 compelling state interest of safety in the courtroom 3 may require shackles for certain defendants.

4 And you don't have that. And that makes sense.
5 And that's logical. So if - - - even though it's error, 6 you find that shackles are required because of an 7 uncontrollable defendant, for some particular safety
8 reason, then the judge can make an appropriate 9 determination on the record, and you're allowed to go 10 ahead and do that, even though it clearly impinges on 11 their rights, and implies that - - - it undermines the 12 presumption of innocence.

13 There is no compelling state interest for safety 14 in the question of clothing. So that's why I focus in on 15 the harmless error - - -

16 MR. FERDENZI: Right.

17 JUDGE FAHEY: - - - analysis.

18 MR. FERDENZI: But - - -

19 JUDGE GARCIA: Counsel, I'm sorry. I
20 understood your point in the compelling argument - - 21 - state interest argument to be, that's balanced in 22 part one, were you say, the person is shackled to the 23 table; is it error. And you say, well, he was 24 violent, he was, you know - - - so there's no error.
25 We don't get to harmless error analysis.

1 In the prison garb, you don't have that 2 first part; there is no compelling state interest in 3 having someone in and sits there in an orange
4 jumpsuit, so it's error. Then you get to harmless 5 error. Is - - -

6 MR. FERDENZI: That is correct. That is 7 the way I think the - - - the analysis proceeds.

8 JUDGE STEIN: But you're not arguing that 9 it's per se error if, for example, if - - - if the 10 defendant here were seated at a table, and there was 11 a, you know, one of those black curtains around the 12 entire table, and he was seated in his wheelchair, 13 and there was absolutely no possibility that he could 14 be seen, then it wouldn't be error just because he 15 was wearing the pants, right?

16 MR. FERDENZI: Correct. There are 17 situations where the - - - a court could find that 18 there was no error. I'm simply addressing the 19 hypothetical scenario of, if this court were to find 20 there were error here, that just like the Appellate 21 Division did, it would apply harmless error analysis, 22 and conclude that in this case, this half-day 23 possibility would constitute - - -

24 JUDGE RIVERA: But again, this is why I'm 25 asking you. I do not understand the argument about

1 the compelling state interest. Because once you've 2 decided there's an error, that is no longer relevant.
3 Now, you're deciding the impact of the error. So 4 what is the compelling - - - it's an error or it's 5 not an error, and then you move on from there.

6 MR. FERDENZI: Yes, Your Honor. I - - - I
7 understand that. And so what I'm say - - - saying 8 here is that if a court were to find that there were 9 error - - -

10 JUDGE RIVERA: Um-hum.

11 MR. FERDENZI: - - - it could,
12 nevertheless, be deemed harmless. And this would be 13 an appropriate case for that, because there's 14 overwhelming evidence of guilt here.

15 And the defendant - - - we understand, I 16 mean, the judge here was obviously not pleased by 17 having this defendant produced late and in prison
18 clothing. And it did what it could, and I think it 19 did it satisfactorily. It had - - - it waited until 20 he was wearing a black knit top, it made sure that 21 the wheelchair was pushed under this very - - - as 22 the court described it, very wide table, and it did 23 what it could to make sure that there was no error
24 here, that the jurors could not see these orange 25 pants, which, in any event, were not - - - didn't

1 have numbers, didn't have stripes, didn't have 2 anything.

3 Yes, the participants, the judge, the 4 prosecutor, the defense attorney, everybody knew they 5 were prison pants, but that doesn't mean that a 6 juror, upon seeing a man dressed in a black knit top 7 with orange sweats, would come to that conclusion.

8 I see my time is up, and if there are no further 9 questions, I will rest on our brief.

10 JUDGE ABDUS-SALAAM: I would like you to 11 address the second half of the argument, though, 12 counsel, about the gun testimony coming in.

13 MR. FERDENZI: Oh, yes, Your Honor. I'd be 14 pleased to.

15 The main problem with that issue, before this 16 court, is it's not preserved.

17 His objections were about - - - largely about 18 the testimo - - - any testimony that was connected to the 19 October 27th Bronx incident. He never objected to the ex-
20 girlfriend's testimony about what she saw before the Bronx 21 incident. In fact, that's why when you look at the 22 record, you'll see that the prosecutor was very careful 23 about understanding the scope of this ruling, and limited 24 her testimony to events before October 27th.

25 And as far as the merits goes, I - - - I think

1 the trial court and the Appellate Division were all
2 correct, that this was relevant evidence whose relevancy 3 exceeded any prejudicial value.

4 So the ruling, I believe, was correct; it should 5 be affirmed.

6 Thank you.

7 CHIEF JUDGE DIFIORE: Thank you, Mr.
8 Ferdenzi.

9 Ms. Pazner.

10 MS. PAZNER: Shackling and prison garb are 11 different. Shackling, there's sometimes a necessary 12 state interest here. That presupposes both that 13 there may be, at times, misapplication, and it
14 presupposes, therefore, that harmless error analysis 15 may apply.

16 JUDGE STEIN: Doesn't that work - - - cut 17 both ways? Because to me, seeing a defendant in 18 shackles would be way more prejudicial than seeing a 19 defendant in prison garb.

20 MS. PAZNER: I disagree, Your Honor. I
21 believe that while shackling - - - first of all, this 22 court in Clyde said that - - -

23 JUDGE STEIN: Well, one - - - to me, one 24 suggests that - - - that this person is in - - - is 25 in prison, and - - - and I think most people

1 understand that sometimes people are held if they've 2 been charged with a serious crime, or whatever. The 3 other is that this person is a dangerous person.

4 MS. PAZNER: That - - -

5 JUDGE STEIN: That this is a violent
6 person. And - - - and here, particularly in a case 7 like this, where there is alleged use of a weapon, or 8 something that appears to be a weapon, I - - - I just 9 - - - I think it could cut both ways.

10 MS. PAZNER: I don't believe that it's just 11 that he is a prisoner. I believe that it suggests he 12 has a prior criminal record. It suggests that - - - 13 because he's being held, it does suggest that he may 14 have a prior pris - - -

15 JUDGE STEIN: But even - - - even if you're 16 right about that, how - - - how is that more 17 prejudicial than suggesting that here is a person 18 that can't even be freely sitting in a courtroom with 19 court officers and - - - and everything around. This 20 person is so dangerous, we have to have him or her 21 shackled.

22 MS. PAZNER: Well, first, this court, in 23 Clyde, stated that likely, what a jury would say is - 24 - - particularly in a violent crime, is that a person 25 is being shackled for precaution, rather than assume

1 independently that he's a dangerous man. That's this 2 court in Clyde.

3 First of - - - second of all, prison garb
4 suggests a flight risk, suggests that he's generally a 5 criminal, it's - - -

6 JUDGE FAHEY: Yeah, but rationally - - - 7 rationally - - - listen, rationally, shackling just 8 looks worse than - - - than orange pants. I mean, if 9 - - - if you're sitting there in a jury, don't you 10 think that that's kind of rational?

11 Isn't - - - isn't the real question not 12 that, because I - - - the real question is, we apply 13 a harmless error analysis to shackling, and that's 14 because we're - - - there's a compelling state 15 interest that we're trying to protect, and the 16 safety, and the conduct of the courtroom. We don't 17 have that compelling state interest in clothing.
18 Isn't that the real distinction?

19 MS. PAZNER: It - - -

20 JUDGE FAHEY: Because Judge Stein, it's 21 hard to rationally argue with what she said. It 22 makes perfect sense; shackling is worse. You know,
23 it's a - - -

24 MS. PAZNER: I understand, Your Honor, that 25 - - - that - - - and I agree that the main argument

1 here is that harmless error is more appropriate in a 2 shackling case, because there is sometimes a state 3 interest to do so.

4 JUDGE GARCIA: But isn't the problem with 5 that, once you get to the harmless error analysis in 6 a shackling case, you've decided there isn't a 7 compelling state interest? In order to get to the 8 harmless error analysis, you've already determined, 9 there is no compelling state interest to shackle the 10 person. Otherwise, it's not error.

11 MS. PAZNER: I - - - I understand that. I
12 think it's just more of looking at the error in a 13 macro way, that we understand that sometimes there's 14 going to be a misapplication, and it still gives the 15 People a chance - - - the State a chance to prove its 16 case, whereas here, there is never a justifiable
17 reason to do so, and that does not - - - than pre - - 18 - pre-assumed the same harmless error analysis.

19 CHIEF JUDGE DIFIORE: Thank you, counsel.

20 MS. PAZNER: Thank you.
