

Mediator Training

The Peacemaker Program is offering a 35-Hour Basic Mediation Training in cooperation with Duke Fisher of Learning Laboratories.

This training will provide everything that a participant needs to become a certified mediator in New York State.* The skills learned are valuable additions to a resumé, and powerful tools in both personal and professional conflicts. Participants will learn how to become effective listeners, communicate better, solve problems, and preserve relationships.

No previous experience is required.

Duke Fisher and Mark W. Leuthauser present entertaining, informative, and engaging trainings using a mixture of reading, lecture, games, role-play, multimedia, and group discussion.

Training Schedule

June 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 10th, and 11th 9am - 4pm

Tuition is $350 per person. Payment is due by no later than May 27th. This fee is returnable upon becoming a certified volunteer mediator.

Registration for this training is limited, to ensure quality training and a positive experience. Attendance on all five days is required. Lunch will be provided.

For more information, please visit our website or contact Mark W. Leuthauser, Executive Director.

*Per requirements set by the New York State Unified Court System, pending apprenticeship and certification.

I just want to give back to my community. What do most people do? Everybody's so tired of fighting.
I'm the peacemaker in my family, at work, everywhere! We can't agree on anything! Please help!
Isn't there some way to work things out without screaming at each other in court? I need this to be over.
I'm a good listener. I understand people. How do we make this work? The has to be a better way.
I can help. This isn't working. Someone needs to understand what's really important.
Why won't they listen? We agree on almost everything! I just want what's fair. What can we do?
