

AGGRAVATED VEHICULAR ASSAULT
(Prior Suspension or Revocation)
Penal Law § 120.04-a (2)
(Committed on or after Nov. 1, 2007)

Note: Subdivision two (a) and (b) of Penal Law § 120.04-a require commission of Reckless Driving, Vehicular Assault in the Second Degree and various elements related to the defendant knowing or having reason to know that his or her license was suspended or revoked. Those latter elements are subject to the procedure set forth in CPL 200.60.

That procedure requires that the elements related to the defendant knowing or having reason to know that his or her license was suspended or revoked be alleged in a special information.

If, upon arraignment on the special information, the defendant admits the operative elements, the court must not make any reference to them in the definition of the crime or in the listing of elements.

But, if the defendant denies those elements or remains mute, the court must add the appropriate elements to the definition of the crime and the list of elements. See People v Cooper, 78 NY2d 476, 479 (1991)(In a Vehicular Manslaughter case, CPL 200.60 required the special information to plead both defendant's prior conviction and that he or she knew that the conviction resulted in revocation of his license); People v Burgess, 89 AD3d 1100 (2d Dept 2011)(The defendant's admission to a special information that he was previously convicted of driving while intoxicated, that his license was accordingly revoked, and that his license remained revoked as of the date of the alleged crimes relieved the People of their burden of proving those elements, and granted the defendant the protection afforded by CPL 200.60.); People v Alshoaibi, 273 AD2d 871, 872 (4th Dept 2000)("CPL 200.60 applies both to convictions and conviction-related facts."); People v Orlen, 170 Misc 2d 737 (Nassau County Court 1996)(CPL 200.60 applies to a suspension or revocation based upon a refusal to submit to a chemical test), cited by People v Alshoaibi, 273 AD2d at 872, supra, in support of its decision.

This charge assumes the defendant has admitted the elements recited in the CPL 200.60 special information. If not, the Court must read the applicable elements in the definition of this charge, and add them to the list of elements to be proven beyond a reasonable doubt.

The (specify) count is Aggravated Vehicular Assault.

Under our law, a person is guilty of Aggravated Vehicular Assault when he or she engages in Reckless Driving<sup>1</sup> and commits the crime of Vehicular Assault in the Second Degree<sup>2</sup>.

The following terms used in that definition have a special meaning:

A person ENGAGES IN RECKLESS DRIVING when that person drives or uses any motor vehicle,<sup>3</sup> in a manner which unreasonably interferes with the free and proper use of a public highway, road, street, or avenue, or unreasonably endangers users of a public highway, road, street, or avenue.<sup>4</sup>

Intoxication, absent more, does not establish reckless driving. One can engage in reckless driving without being

<sup>3</sup> At this point, the statute continues: “motorcycle or any other vehicle propelled by any power other than a muscular power or any appliance or accessory thereof.” (Vehicle & Traffic Law § 1212). Such language has been omitted here due to the all encompassing term “motor vehicle.” The additional statutory language should, however, be inserted if that type of vehicle is at issue

<sup>4</sup> The term “public highway,” used twice in the definition of “reckless driving,” is separately defined to include “[a]ny highway, road, street, avenue, alley, public place, public driveway or any other public way.” Vehicle and Traffic Law § 134. Instead of separately defining that term, the most common types of “public highway” (road, street, or avenue) have been incorporated directly into the definition of “reckless driving.” Of course, if one of the omitted types of “public highway” is in issue, that type of “public highway” should be added.

intoxicated and, conversely, one can drive while intoxicated without engaging in reckless driving. Evidence of an individual's intoxication and how that condition may have affected his or her ability to perceive and react to risks commonly encountered while operating a motor vehicle on a public highway may be considered in determining whether a person was engaged in reckless driving when that evidence is coupled with evidence of the manner in which the motor vehicle was being operated.<sup>5</sup>

Under our law a person commits the crime of VEHICULAR ASSAULT IN THE SECOND DEGREE when he or she<sup>6</sup> operates a motor vehicle<sup>7</sup>

while he or she has .08 of one per centum or more by weight of alcohol in his or her blood as shown by chemical analysis of his or her blood, breath, urine or saliva.<sup>8</sup>

while he or she is in an intoxicated condition.<sup>9</sup>

<sup>6</sup> At this point the statute states "causes serious physical injury to another...." That portion is omitted here because that language is repeated at the end of the statute where it makes more sense. Thus, to avoid redundancy and for clarity, this charge utilizes the reference to serious physical injury at the end of the statute.

<sup>7</sup> At this point, the statute states: "in violation of subdivision two, three, four or four-a of section eleven hundred ninety-two of the vehicle and traffic law or operates a vessel or public vessel in violation of paragraph (b), (c), (d) or (e) of subdivision two of section forty-nine-a of the navigation law." In lieu of that language, this charge inserts the applicable provisions of the Vehicle and Traffic Law.

while his or her ability to operate such a vehicle is impaired by the use of a drug.<sup>10</sup> and as a result of such intoxication [or impairment by the use of a drug, or impairment by the combined influence of drugs or of alcohol and any drug or drugs], operates such motor vehicle in a manner that causes serious physical injury to another person.

[The term DRUG includes (specify<sup>12</sup>).]

SERIOUS PHYSICAL INJURY means impairment of a person's physical condition which creates a substantial risk of death or which causes death or serious and protracted disfigurement, protracted impairment of health or protracted loss or impairment of the function of any bodily organ.<sup>13</sup>

Under our law, if the People prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant was operating a motor vehicle while unlawfully intoxicated or impaired by the use of alcohol [or impaired by the use of a drug, or impaired by the combined influence of drugs or of alcohol and any drug or drugs], and while doing so caused serious physical injury to another person, then you may, but are not required to, infer that, as a result of such intoxication or impairment, such person operated the motor vehicle in a manner that caused such serious physical injury to another person.<sup>14</sup>

In order for you to find the defendant guilty of this crime, the People are required to prove, from all the evidence in the case, beyond a reasonable doubt, each of the following three elements:

1. That on or about (date), in the county of (County), the defendant, (defendant's name), engaged in reckless driving of a motor vehicle; and

2. That the defendant did so:

<sup>14</sup> The Legislative Memorandum in support of this statute states that “the addition of the rebuttable presumption provision would create a causal link between a driver who causes serious physical injury or death and a presumption that it was his or her intoxication or impairment that was the cause of such serious physical injury or death.” See People v Mojica, 62 AD3d 100 (2d Dept 2009), lv denied 12 NY3d 856 (2009).

If you find the People have proven beyond a reasonable doubt each of those elements, you must find the defendant guilty of this crime.

If you find the People have not proven beyond a reasonable doubt any one or more of those elements, you must find the defendant not guilty of this crime.

<sup>15</sup> If the defendant did not admit the additional elements set forth in the special information, those elements need to be added to this list of elements.
