

Searching Law Review Articles in Lexis Advance

Law reviews are scholarly articles that can help you in your research. There are a number of ways to find law reviews:

- If you are researching a topic where a New York or federal laws applies, the codes' annotations and updating services will list law reviews that cite the law in the text.
- If you want a law review that discusses the importance of a found case, use Shepard's.
- You can also do a keyword search in Lexis Advance's law reviews.

After logging-into Lexis, click on Secondary Materials on the Content Tab.

From this Secondary Materials page, click on Law Reviews & Journals

From here, you can either search by law reviews published by state or by practice area.

The screenshot shows the Lexis Advance website interface. At the top, there is a search bar with the placeholder text "Enter terms, sources, a citation, or shep: to Shepardize®" and a search button labeled "Law Reviews and Journals". Below the search bar, there are two main sections: "State" and "Practice Area".

Remember that relevance sorting relies upon a machine algorithm. To find influential articles, use Shepard's to find out if an article has been cited by later law reviews. Here, even 13 Loy. J. Pub. Inst. L 219 is ranked as the most relevant, it has been cited by only two later law reviews. The second law review has been cited 18 times. You will need to take full advantage of Lexis Advance research resources to find useful articles.
